

RAISING SMART CHILDREN

I like to share some of our experiences about bringing up children. I am more focused with Discipline because this looks like an Auto Pilot system for Raising-up Children. Self-discipline and familial discipline are the two major developmental tasks that the characteristics all parents need to see in their child. As a father or mother or even a teacher there must be a communication process that is taking place without the child's knowledge but is for the child's wellbeing. In general discipline is a two way process of disciplining oneself and disciplining the child. Over disciplining and under disciplining is harmful to a child, always keep a scheduled, well-paced, and balanced approach.
