

Barking Man: And Other Stories (Open Road)

Ten tales of misfits in big cities and lonely backwaters, striving to free themselves from traps of their own making. In each of Bells ten stories, characters struggle through trying times, captives of their own bad decisions or plain bad luck. In Black and Tan, a farmers fortitude after the tragic death of his family leads him to become a savior of delinquent boys. The title story charts a London students crumbling psyche. And in Petit Cachou hustlers and panhandlers in the French Riviera experience the darker side of life on a seemingly perfect stretch of the Mediterranean coastline. While depicting characters both sympathetic and hopeless, Bells remarkable insight makes for a vivid rendering of civilizations many frayed edges. Barking Man is the authors second collection of stories, and presents Bells writing at its most unforgettable.
