

Recalculating

When five teenagers--all close friends--borrow a parents car for a road trip to New York City, a malfunctioning GPS sends them straight into major trouble. Lost on back roads, they witness two police officers committing murder in cold blood--and the cops know they have been spotted. As they try to hide from the police, the five friends end up involved in bringing the murderers to justice. Along the way, their friendships deepen - and some turn to love. The author is a 16 year old from New York. This is her second novel.
